A Word to Republicans.

The hope of the party lies in the expansion of a sincere Republican press. The Republican who reads or otherwise helps to support a Democratic paper to the exclusion of one of his own party newspapers is untrue to the Republican cause.

Unanimously subscribed to by the National Republican League.

A LONDON newspaper called The Morning has been making an investigation into the condition of the London dock laborers, and states that "the average weekly wages of the dockers who get work is twelve shillings." This is $2.88.

The persons receiving this pay are, it is to be remembered, working at the hardest kind of toil that requires, or should require, plenty of strong food to sustain them in proper condition. But it appears there is a lower depth even for the dock laborer. Less than one-half of the London "dockers" are regularly employed. The majority are casuals, and of these many do not make more than one shilling, or twenty-four cents, a week. They wait all day for work with this miserable result.

"How do such people exist?" asks the London newspaper from which we take these facts, and it answers its own question. They pawn all articles not absolutely necessary. They live upon bread and tea, and for these they often depend upon intimate friends. The "dockers" make a secret of their poverty, often even among themselves, and for this reason, says The Morning, the general impression may be that there is little or no poverty among them.

But the misery of London is not confined to dock laborers. Commissioner CADMAN of the Salvation Army estimates that not less than a quarter of a million of men, women and children in London are to-day in actual want of the necessities of life. The pictures of poverty presented are appalling. One family—a husband, a wife and four children—were found whose expense for food was eight cents a day. The husband, a ship's steward, had been out of employment for months. In another case a woman was on her way to pawn the last sheet as the Salvation Army official entered the house. Another woman had just sold her last piece of furniture, a kettle, for eight cents to buy food. A husband, wife and child who had been living for a long time on less than half a loaf of bread a day. As the Salvation Army messenger entered with food another home almost destitute of furniture the wife wept and one of the children said: "We can have some bread now."

But it is needless to follow the harrowing description. The misery of London is enough to excite sympathy in every humane heart, and at the same time to call forth thankfulness that such scenes are not familiar in the United States.

It is all wrong, from the Kentucky Democratic standpoint, for the Federal Government to tax the dear people; but it is all right for Kentucky's Democratic Legislature to levy any rate of taxes that it pleases and upon what it pleases. And when the Legislature can't find any way to squander the people's money the officials at Frankfort steal it.

DEMOCRATIC statesmanship proposes to take the duty off tin plate, which now taxes each family about fifteen cents per year, and in order to make this revenue deficit good, will levy a duty on tea, coffee, sugar and cocoa, so that every family in the land will be taxed every time it sits down to breakfast. Proceed with your tariff reform, gentlemen.

ADAM COOVER of Warren township came to South Bend, March 21st, 1890, good old Democratic Free-trade times and bought the following articles, says The Tribune of South Bend, Ind.:

5 pounds of rope, 16 cents. $.80
1 clothesline, .33
1 gallon molasses, .31
1 pound wrought nails, .16

Total, $1.60

Mr. COOVER brought with him ten dozen eggs, for which he received a credit on his store account of eighty cents, or just one-half the amount of his bill.

Mr. COOVER is still living in Warren township, says The Tribune, and votes the Republican ticket. Had he come to South Bend, March 21st, 1892, and bought the same articles they would have cost him $1.15 instead of $1.60, and he would have received for his ten dozen eggs $1.80 instead of eighty cents. In other words, instead of going home in debt eighty cents, he would have sixty-five cents to his credit.

Go to Thomas's China Store and buy your Christmas presents at your own price. He is determined to close out his stock.

The Emerson Piano.

These instruments have enjoyed a high reputation for more than forty years. Are brilliant and musical in tone, and afford a most beautiful accompaniment to vocal music—the tone having the rare sympathetic quality which blends admirably with the human voice. They are durable, being constructed of the best materials, by the most skillful workmen. They have earned an especial reputation for keeping in tune, and also for retaining in a most remarkable degree their original fullness of tone—never growing thin or wiry with age. The Emerson Upright Pianos especially have obtained a remarkable success during the past few years, and have invariably received a high award wherever exhibited. In all the essential qualities of a first-class instrument they are second to no piano manufactured in the country.
